STFM Membership

Advancing Family Medicine to Improve Health Through a Community of Teachers and Scholars

As a member of the Society of Teachers of Family Medicine (STFM), you will learn about new ways to lead your communities, modeling health equity, wellness, antiracism, and more. Additional benefits of membership include:

- Support in meeting accreditation requirements
- Access to professionally prepared curricula
- Unparalleled networking opportunities
- Opportunities to present at academic family medicine’s leading conferences
- Subscriptions to outstanding peer reviewed journals

Choosing a profession that provides an opportunity to impact those around you can be transforming. The comprehensive wealth of knowledge you acquire as a family medicine physician makes that impact even greater.

With vast contributions to underserved communities, medical schools, and residency programs, family medicine and education are among the most respected professions in the world. Applying for membership is an easy and important step to advancing your career, as well as championing family medicine.

STFM 2021-2022 Initiatives

Antiracism

In 2021, STFM launched a new initiative to advance racial equity and eliminate racism in academic family medicine. A task force has been appointed to work on tactics to:

Create institutional change

- Help members identify racist structures and behaviors within their institutions and work with leaders to implement change
- Provide family medicine faculty and learners the knowledge and skills to effectively advocate for antiracism policies and practices in their institutions and communities

Promote allyship

- Enhance the knowledge and skills of family medicine faculty and learners in bestowed power and intercultural humility, so they may more effectively serve as BIPOC allies
- Help STFM members take action as upstanders

Model antiracism

- Integrate an antiracist analysis and identity into the work of all STFM resources and programming provided to members

Empower the next generation to impact change

- Provide support to STFM members in their efforts to transform family medicine educators, learners, and their institutions to be more antiracist

A survey of STFM members provided baseline data to prioritize the work of the task force and to measure the impact of the initiative. The task force is also building an Academic Family Medicine Antiracism Learning Collaborative.

Health Systems Engagement

STFM prioritizes engagement with health systems leaders from both organizational and individual perspectives. STFM has implemented a multi-year action plan to:

- Ensure that family medicine faculty, including community preceptors in non-academic settings, have sufficient time and institutional resources to teach and meet academic and accreditation requirements
- Preserve comprehensive practice for family physicians and family medicine faculty who wish to practice broad scope
- Improve faculty and learner well-being
- Transform family medicine training sites into clinical and teaching models of excellence

Recent progress includes:

- Aggregating and creating online resources to help faculty understand how decisions are made in health systems and advocate for business-based solutions
- Identifying family physicians in positions of leadership in large health systems
- Conducting interviews with health systems leaders
- Publishing case studies about family medicine leaders during the COVID pandemic
- Developing talking points about the value of family medicine within health systems

stfm.org/healthsystems

Preceptor Expansion

STFM is leading a multi-year, interprofessional and interdisciplinary initiative to address the shortage of high-quality clinical training sites for students.

In 2020, STFM wrapped up a multi-year pilot called Building Better Clinical Training Experiences: A Learning Collaborative. During the pilot, family medicine departments—and collaborating specialties and professions—participated in one of three projects to implement, evaluate, and disseminate innovative approaches to standardize the onboarding of students and to engage community preceptors. Publication of the results of the pilot are pending.

In January 2021, STFM began a new phase of the Preceptor Expansion Initiative focusing on dissemination of results and resources. One component of dissemination is an AAFP Chapter Engagement Project that includes:

- A presentation to chapter executives at AAFP's Annual Chapter Leadership Forum
- A virtual panel presentation on state tax incentives
- Precepting presentations and exhibits at chapter meetings
- Print and social media ads for chapter publications

stfm.org/preceptorexansion

Protected Non-Clinical Time for Faculty

A task force convened by STFM published national guidelines in June 2021 that define the amount of time needed by faculty to meet the non-clinical requirements of residency programs. This is in response to a national trend toward maximizing clinical productivity of faculty, which reduces the amount of time available teach and to meet administrative responsibilities and accreditation requirements. Specifically, the task force was asked to:

- Develop Joint Guidelines for Protected Non-Clinical Time for Faculty in Family Medicine Residency Programs
- Make recommendations for dissemination of those guidelines
- Publish the guidelines in a peer-reviewed publication
- Publish the guidelines in publications targeted at hospital administration
- Present or identify speakers to present the guidelines at conferences
- Appeal to the ACGME for changes in its requirements

Telemedicine Curriculum Development and Pilot Project

15 medical schools and 15 family medicine residency programs are piloting a new telemedicine curriculum that was developed by an STFM member task force. The curriculum includes five asynchronous modules that cover:

- Intro to Telehealth
- The Telehealth Encounter
- Requirements for Telehealth
- Access and Equity in Telehealth
- Future of Telehealth

The curriculum launched in September 2021 and is free to all STFM members.

Career Development

Behavioral Science and Family Systems Educator Fellowship

Grow professionally while integrating behavioral science and family systems core principals in the practice of family medicine with this competitive, yearlong fellowship for family medicine faculty who have responsibility for coordinating or teaching the behavioral science/family systems curriculum. Preference is given to applicants with 1 to 5 years of experience as a faculty member. The Behavioral Science/Family Systems Educator Fellowship uses a structured learning curriculum of core content and formalized mentoring and will help you:

- Better understand the medical culture
- Build a personalized professional development plan
- Integrate behavioral science and family systems core principles into the practice of family medicine
- Plan, create, and present a scholarly project at a national conference
- Grow professionally through strong mentoring relationships with seasoned behavioral science/family systems educators and physicians

stfm.org/bfef

Emerging Leaders Fellowship

Access training, tools, and support for new faculty and those transitioning to leadership roles. This yearlong fellowship provides an opportunity to:

- Learn critical leadership skills
- Take on a leadership role right from the beginning of the program
- Lead a team in a project and present on your leadership experience
- Get connected to family medicine leaders who will share tips on motivating others and handling difficult people and situations
- Attend the STFM Annual Spring Conference 2 years in a row—nothing tops this conference for networking, exposure, and presentation experience

Advocacy

STFM staff advocate on your behalf for family medicine education in Washington DC. Ideally, advocacy is a partnership between STFM staff and STFM members. Learn how you can get involved. STFM provides content related to significant issues, as well as tools to help you develop skills to engage policy makers on key issues of concern.

Advocacy Toolkit

Make a difference for yourself, your department, your community, and your learners by advocating for programs that support family medicine education and research. Educate legislators on the value of primary care and encourage them to support expansion of a well-trained family medicine workforce. Preparation with these tips and resources is key to becoming an effective advocate:

- Free online advocacy course—see page 17
- Tips for communicating with legislators
- US Representative finder
- US Senator finder
- Congressional Health Committee descriptions
- Glossary of congressional and legislative terms
- Agency names and advocacy terms

stfm.org/advocacy

Leadership Through Scholarship Fellowship—New!

This yearlong fellowship offers training and mentorship for early-career underrepresented in medicine (URM) minority faculty with a focus on developing scholarly writing skills for academic advancement and leadership. Fellows will learn to:

- Develop key scholarship writing skills
- Identify methods to research a question and analyze data
- Assess the quality of existing literature
- Identify and address the disparities of the minority tax
- Write, present, and publish scholarly products
- Pursue promotion and tenure opportunities at their institution
- Build a personalized path to academic leadership

stfm.org/leadershipscholarship

Medical Editing Fellowship

Experience a yearlong fellowship with the editorial and publishing teams at Family Medicine. Through this part-time, virtual fellowship, early or mid-career faculty receive coaching and hands-on experience to improve skills in writing, reviewing, and editing scientific papers. During the fellowship, participants:

- Learn about the characteristics and value of well-written research papers and narrative essays, and practice evaluating submissions
- Experience the manuscript submission process and become expert in using the journal's editorial software system
- Act as assistant editors by selecting peer reviewers, following-up reviews, and writing professional decision letters
- Go behind the scenes to understand what happens between acceptance and publication
- Improve medical writing skills

stfm.org/mededitingfellowship

Medical Student Educators Development Institute (MSEDI)

Learn the skills needed to advance your career in medical student education, while forging lasting relationships with other participants and MSEDI faculty. Learning opportunities include:

- Developing Curriculum
- Evaluating Students
- Dealing with challenging learners
- Recruiting and maintaining preceptor networks
- Directing a course
- Providing career advice to students
- Submitting a scholarly project
- Balancing Life and Work

stfm.org/msedi

Residency Faculty Fundamentals Certificate Program

This certificate program includes self-led courses and assignments to provide foundational training for residency faculty, and covers:

- The structure and requirements of residency education
- How to be an effective and efficient faculty member
- The nuts and bolts of curriculum development and teaching
- Strategies for assessment, feedback, and remediation of residents

The program's self-led courses include readings, videos, interactive modules, quizzes, and assignments and provide 30 hours of CME credit.

stfm.org/rff

Understanding Health Systems Curriculum—New!

These online courses and resources help faculty understand how decisions are made within health systems and advocate for business-based solutions that incorporate the needs of medical education, family medicine, and health systems. Topics include:

- The business of medicine
- Systems and structure
- Health systems finance
- Advocating for what you need in your health care system
- Educating residents and students about health systems
- Analyzing health systems data

Governance and Operations Leadership

Drive innovation and strengthen STFM by engaging in one of many STFM leadership opportunities:

- STFM Board director
- Foundation trustee
- Task force member
- Committee member
- Alliance for Clinical Education representative
- Center for the History of Family Medicine representative
- WONCA representative
- Conference submission reviewer
- Conference dine-out leader
- Conference speaker or moderator
- Publication editor, reviewer, or author
- Fellowship director or faculty
- Collaborative or special project team leader

Resources

Advocacy Course

Educate legislators on the value of family medicine and encourage them to support the expansion of a well-trained family medicine workforce with this free online course. The course provides skills and practical strategies for advocating and promoting the value of family medicine and includes these modules:

- Getting started in advocacy
- Prepare and make contact
- The one-pager
- The visit
- Maintaining the relationship

The modules may be taken in any order, and a certificate is available upon completion of each module.

stfm.org/advocacycourse

Antiracism and Health Equity Resources

STFM condemns and denounces discriminatory and racist acts and calls on all members of the family medicine community to speak out against inequality and systemic racism. Resources in the areas of antiracism, health equity, and underrepresented in medicine (URM) leadership are continually developed and aggregated in this centralized location for STFM member use.

CAFM Educational Research Alliance (CERA)

Meet scholarly activity requirements through CERA, a free resource for medical education research. CERA conducts approximately six surveys each year of:

- Family medicine residency directors
- Clerkship directors
- Department chairs
- Residents
- Students
- General membership, including potential subsets of members

stfm.org/cera

Clerkship Onboarding Resources

Join departments, specialties, and health professions across the country in standardizing the onboarding of students and reducing the administrative burdens for community preceptors. Goals include:

- Easing the administrative burden on community faculty (preceptors) at ambulatory clinical sites by standardizing documentation
- Helping preceptors integrate students more easily into the practice
- Increasing student value to practices
- Aiding teaching programs in administering clinical clerkship (rotation) experiences

Guidelines for Protected Nonclinical Time

Faculty require nonclinical time for resident development, curriculum creation and maintenance, program assessment, and scholarship. Without these functions, programs can't meet accreditation requirements or fulfill their responsibility to develop strong family physicians. Residency programs, sponsoring institutions, universities, health care systems, and accrediting bodies should use these recommendations to develop budgets that provide appropriate time allocation to enhance faculty wellness, reduce turnover, and meet organizational missions and objectives around education and providing care for communities.
